

USPTO Publishes Proposed Rules to Implement Micro Entity Status for Paying Discounted Patent Fees

June 1, 2012

The U.S. Commerce Department's United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) is proposing to amend the rules of practice in patent cases to implement the micro entity provision of the Leahy-Smith America Invents Act (AIA). If an applicant qualifies as a micro entity, then the applicant is eligible to pay reduced patent fees once the USPTO exercises its fee setting authority under the AIA. The fee setting provision in the AIA sets the micro entity discount at 75% of the fees set or adjusted for filing, searching, examining, issuing, appealing, and maintaining patent applications and patents.

Please click here to view the USPTO's press release on this news.

Posted: August 1, 2012